The ODC Diagnostic Imaging Center Announces December Opening

New, state-of-the-art facility and women's imaging center coming to the Golden Triangle

BEAUMONT, Texas — A new 8,000-square-foot imaging facility serving the Golden Triangle will open in December. The Outpatient Diagnostic Center (The ODC) currently under construction in Beaumont, Texas, will feature state-of-the art diagnostic imaging equipment and a dedicated women's imaging center.

“There's a strong need for a locally owned and operated outpatient diagnostic imaging center in our area,” said The ODC medical director and radiologist Brent Mainwaring, M.D. “Our center fills that need, and we're thrilled to be nearing completion on this outstanding facility to serve the Golden Triangle.”

The new imaging center at 3405 College Street in Beaumont is scheduled to start seeing its first patients in mid-December. The ODC will host a formal grand opening and open house in January 2012.

The ODC will provide state-of-the-art MRI, digital mammography, CT, ultrasound and general X-ray services to Beaumont and the surrounding area. The facility will also be home to a comprehensive, dedicated women's health center. The women's center will feature a separate waiting room, offering privacy in an upscale, spa-like environment with ambient lighting, warm robes and a specially trained support staff. Services will include breast ultrasound, mammography, breast MRI, breast biopsy and DEXA bone densitometry.

Earlier this year, Mainwaring announced he was leaving his previous position at Diagnostic Health Center of Beaumont, where he had practiced for the past 18 years, to open the new imaging center.

Mainwaring said The ODC will focus on providing community-based diagnostic imaging services supported by local physicians and their patients, allowing him to continue his work to improve patient care and diagnostic services in the region.

“It’s always been my desire to stay in the Beaumont area, and it’s part of my philosophy to keep medical decisions where they belong — closer to the doctor and patient,” explained Mainwaring.

To better accommodate the needs of patients and physicians, The ODC will offer expanded office hours, flexible scheduling and rapid report turnaround on most exams. Dr. Mainwaring is board certified by the American Board of Radiology with subspecialty expertise in diagnostic radiology. He has more than 20 years of professional radiology experience with special expertise in MRI, mammography and ultrasound.
